REFORM PRISONERS IN ENGLAND.

The Union Co.* as. Moor arrived at Plymouth gesterday, and brought 2 Reform prisoners. Capt. T. Mein, manager of the Robinson Mine at Johannesburg, and Mr. C. Butters, managing director of the Rand Central Oil Reduction Co. They were arrested on Jan. 9, and conveyed with 2 other prisoners to Pretoria. They state that they were met on getting out of the train by a mob estimated at about 4,000 persons, who howied at them on route to the gaol. After 10 days in gaol they were liberated on ball, and were subsequently released. Both gentlemen are American subjects, and speak strongly of the treatment to which they were subjected whitst incarcerated. Asked what they thought of President Kruger's clemency, both passengers sail nothing was done by him until he was domined to a limited circle, but that the movement had been popular, is the event of further trouble, that the end confined to a limited circle, but that the movement had been popular, is the worment had been popular, is the Castle Jennie of the Jennie of

This week 6 of the 15 defendants in the Jameson raid case were committed for trial by Sir J. Bridge and 9 were discharged. Those committed for trial were Dr. Jameson, Sir J. Willoughby. Hon. Frederick White., Col. Circy, Hon. R. White. and Maj. Coventry. In view of a development that was expected to be dramatic there was a keen competition for seats and the court was very crowded. Sir E. Clarke intimated that Dr. Jameson was desirous of assuming the entire responsibility for the raid, and the defence was postponed to the trial, which will probably take place in the Q. B. Until now the present seeson has an one of male triamphs, the primo hars and the primo bare and the primo bare having it his own way, but the turn of the ima donna has come and the wild thusiasm evoked by Madame Melba thusiasm evoked by Madame Melba making her re-entree on Thursday that was in its way unexampled. The seent generation of opera-gener read pood deal about the triumphs of the sat women singers whose names still in history, but save in the case Madame Patti's return to the stage it year opportunities of witnessing a urrence of such scenes are extremely re. Madame Melba was responsible rone such occasion, and a very retrable one, too. Electing to apar in Gounod's "Romeo et Julistte, opera which affords such splendid ances for the finished vocalist, the stralian soprano literally electrified raudience by the wondrous beauty voice and the chaste finish of style, it rendering of the florid waits song such a superb effort (effort is relly the word, for not the faintest ice of exertion could be discerned at an audience rarely given to much monstration persisted in applaud f the artist until the again poured ther rich and mellow voice in the nillar must. Baskets of flowers, d huge bouquets which literally hid singer on the stage and their alth of blooms and colour, formed a tribute handed over the fooths at the end of both the lat and dacts, and although we have but the liking for this kind of display one on this occasion could be churlough to deny either singer or audice any gratification derived from the servance of this time-worn custom the balcony seen Madame Melba ted with more warmth than ever ith more warmth than ever and throughout the opera her preciation of what dramatic ties it possesses amply proved popular prima donna, despite lable position is by no means content with her present Jean de Reszke, as Romeo, assionate reading of the part, seenes with Juliette were at the remembered. EXTRAORDINARY PUBLIC—HOUSE PROPITS.

At London Sheriff's Court, a special jury awarded £2,628 in a claim for the value of a 2 years' reversion of the lease in the Assembly House Hotel, Kantish Town-rd, which the Midland Raliway Co. require in connection with certain estunions of their line. The claim was by the executors, who would come into possession in 1908 for a period of about 2 years. The annual not profits, it was stated, amounted to £5,627, which included an item of £1,180 as profits on accessories, such as billiards, cakes tobacco, and cigars.—The Under-sheriff remarked that the licenaing laws in 1908 would probably be pretty much the same as at present.

The tale swings along without a single break, carrying its readers with it, and fou, if any, of our subscribers but will be on tenter-hooke of impatience, from west to weak, for the next instalment. We refrain from sketching the plot, test the reader's interest should be diminished. Suffice it, that the development is quite a ment. We refrain from sketching the plot, lest the reader's interest should be diminished. Suffice it, that the development is quite a feat of literary desterity, while in regard to solidily of characterisation, Mr. Marsh's handiwork leaves nothing to be desired.

THE PARLIAMENTARY DEAD-LOCK.

There is no denying the fact that Ministers have, so far, made a tangle of the Parliamentary session. Followine a precedent which they would have done well scrupulously to avoid, they loaded the Queen's Speech with the promise of a number of measures, highly beneficial, but also highly complex, which it seemed doubtful whether they would be able to put through Parliament within the time available. When the actual composition of the most important of all these, the Education Bill, was revealed, it became at once apparent that the danger was even greater than had been anticipated. The bill was seen to be too big. We curselves expressed grave doubts as to the possibility of passing the measure in its entirety, and time has proved that even among the Unionists themsalves, there is the videat divergence of opinion concerning its details. Recognising the awkward nature of the situation Ministers, wisely, took the party into their confidence, and announced, at the meeting last Monday, their intention neither to abandon any of their bills nor to hold an autumn session, but to adjourn in the middle of August and reassemble early next January to conclude the business of the session. Soon, however, it was perceived that the remedy proposed by Ministers would hold an autumn session, but to adjourn in the middle of August and reasemble early next January to conclude the business of the session. Soon, however, it was perceived that the remedy proposed by Ministers would be unequal to the requirements of the case. Time is going on, and every day shows that the discussion of the Education Bill in Committee will have made but very slight progress in the ordinary course of events, by the time the House rises in August. In these circumstances to postpone the further consideration of that and ether measures until next year is merely to bridge over the situation. Such a scheme, no deubt, relieves Ministers of the odium of curtailling the autumn recess, but it will bring confusion later on of a sort which cannot fail to destroy the legislative prospects of the assistences. What, then, is to be done? We submit that there ought to be no difficulty in arriving at a decision if both Ministers and their followers in the House of Commons will only remember the essential purpose for which Parliament exists. Parliament exists to do the buginess of the people's will. has been expressed most amphatically through its representatives, with regard to the Government measures. The Education Bill, in particular, passed the second reading by the largest majority ever recorded in faveur of a measure of such importance. The Agricultural Rating Bill, again, is a measure urgantly needed in the interests of our rural population, while the Irish Land Bill is only apposed by the perversity of some of the representatives of the very class it is meant to benefit. To abandon measures like these would be to shandon the mission and the mandate conferred and accepted as the consequence of the general election. Such self-stuitification is not to be thought of for a moment. No. The antional will and pleasure must be done. Ministers must make up their minds to use their magnificent majority, which was given them for use, and not measurely for show, and must available.

casert that an autumn session is pro-ferable to the scheme of an adjourned assion to be completed in January, remote to the scheme of an adjourned assession to be completed in January, THE USHANT CALAMITY.

THE USHANT CALAMITY.

Although it would be ussafe as yet to pronounce final judgment as to where the responsibility lay for the less of the Drummond Castle, the evidence as far to hand points very strongly towards the conclusion that her captain committed a grave error of judgment. There were no real necessity for the steamer to shave Ushant so closely; absolute asfety could have been secured by giving it a wider beth. Neither was there any bewildering fog at the time, and although the drisaling rain may have obscured the shore lights, that very circumstance should have operated as an additional warning against trying to shorten the voyage by an hour or two. There lies the standing temptation which brings so many fine ships to grief. Skippers know that promotion usually comes to those who make the quickest passages. They are consequently dominated by that ambition, and safety is given only the second place in their minds. There are few vessels now sailing the ocean but have, at one time or another, been placed in imminent jeopardy by this sort of professional emulation. Nor is it desirable that English merchant ships should be sailed with accessive caution. If that came to pass, our prestign as the best ocean-carriers in the world would very soon suffer celipse. That the captains of the Castle line have paid due regard to safety as well as to speed it so conclusively demonstrated by the fact that until the Drummond Castle broke to pieces, this famous service could claim an absolutely unblemished record. Well found, well manned, strongly built, and efficiently engined, its pjendii decament angth had the water-tipht compartment method of construction proved effectual. It so lay remains to tender to those mourning the loss of dear friends and relations the expression of our most sincers and despect sympathy.

possible the original appearance and arrangements throughout. It is assimated that altogether easily 285,000 will have been expended on her for enhibition purposes. It is hered that by enhibiting her at the various sesports of England and America this outlay will be recouped; and, in that event, the owners intend in the end to present her to one of our largest ports. This year it is intended to exhibit her in the Thamses off Woolwich; at Xiet, and probably Plymouth. The Americans are easer to see her, but other English ports will probably be visited before she crosses the Atlantic. Boats are to run daily from Westminster to her meorings at Woolwich, for the purpose of embling the public te visite her.

A man was making alterations in the floor of some stables behind the Crown and Mitre Hotel, Holliswood, when he came across the remains of a man of more than average height. The bones were cramped together as if they had been buried in a heap. The flesh had completely disappeared. The police, who took possession of the bones, are making inquiries into the matter. The present landlord has been the tenant of the house only a few months.

MISHAP TO H.M.S. BLENHEIM.
Particulars have transpired of a mishap to R.M. cruiser Blenheim, of Connaught to Eussia. It is stated that near the entrance of the Baltic
the Blenheim struck a sunten wreck, which will necessitate her being docked for repairs before rejoining the Channel Squadron, 1 of her compartments being full of water. Capt. Poereported the circumstances to the Admiralty, who have ordered the wreck to be marked on the chart, it is thought probable that the wreck is that of a Russian ironciad which foundered some time since with all hands.

DRUNK AT A TEMPERANGE to A SAD CASE.

The Westminster coroner held an inquest on Thomas Williams, 32, commercial clerk, late of Mablee-rd, Upper Norwood, who was found dead in the Strand Temperance Hotel.—Thomas Wilhams, lather, said his son had held very good positions, but for years he drash to excess. He was discherged from Guy's Hospital last week, but he newer returned home. Witness had had great trouble with his son.—An attendant at the Strand Temperance Hotel, Catherine-tt, deposed that deceased asked for a bedroom on the 11th, saying, "I have had no sleep for 2 nights, I'll go to bed at once." Dr. Mills, of Suffolk-place, said that death was due to a fatty liver. The stomach was badly congested by taking strong alcoholic drink. There was also suffocation. Death would be brought on by excessive alcohol. Witness was of the opinion that the man, after obtaining admission to the Temperance Hotel, actually drank a bottle and a half of raw brandy.—Vardiet, found dead.
